WALK 1

Coldingham's Heritage Trail

Distance: approx 2 miles circular

Start and finish: in Coldingham Village Car Park

Terrain: Minor roads, unmade track and paths

Toilets: Coldingham Village Car Park

Coldingham has been a settlement as far back as the 2nd century, when it was marked in Ptolemy's Roman map of Britain being shown as Colania. The original inhabitants called it Colaun and the final syllable 'ham' is supposed to have been added by the Saxons. The Venerable Bede called it Coldana or Coludi Urbs, the name used by the monks of that time. St Cuthbert is recorded as visiting whilst on his missionary journeys over 1300 years ago. John of Gaunt was here in 1381 while his Palace of the Savoy in London was being burned by Wat Tyler.

1. This Heritage Trail starts and finishes at the Village Hall Car Park.
2. Standing in the Car Park looking up the Crossgate you will see the Cross which was erected in 1815 by the Earl of Home, the chief Superior of the district as regards the feuing of land. Between 1826 and 1833 the town crier, Robin Edgar, made the following Proclamation from the Cross: "Oyez Oyez Oyez! By order of the Right Honourable the Earl of Home Lord Dunglass and Coldingham, all randy beggars, thieves and purse-cutters are debarred from molesting this Fair. God Save the King!" A Charter was granted to Coldingham in 1305 to hold a fair on St Luke's Eve, 18th October, lasting for up to 15 days. As late as 1841, there were two Fairs per year held on the site of the present Cross.
3. Looking behind you, next to the Priory gate, is a small building which was used for storage of the horse drawn hearse and on occasion used a temporary mortuary (now Coldingham Secondhand Books). The rear part of this building in the corner of the churchyard was a watch-house.. It was here that vigil was kept by the local men to prevent grave robbers removing bodies to supply the medical schools. A Dr Lowry who lived in the village was convicted and imprisoned in Greenlaw for this crime.
4. Go through the gates and walk down the path under the restored arch towards the Priory. (THE PRIORY IS OPENED FOR VISITORS DURING THE SUMMER MONTHS. PLEASE CHECK TIMES ON THE OAK NOTICE BOARD AT THE PRIORY GATES) In A.D.635 a monastic house was founded and burned down in A.D.679, rebuilt and then destroyed in

A.D.870 by Danish raiders. It is said that on the approach of these warriors, the nuns cut off their noses and upper lips at the instigation of the Abbess and horrified at such an act, the Danes burned the building to the ground, all within perishing. Thus the saying: "Cut off your nose to spite your face."

Little is known between this time and 1098 when King Edgar of Scotland came to witness the dedication of his new church which he then gave to the monks of St Cuthbert. By 1150, the site had become a monastery. Following its destruction by King John of England, the building of a much larger church was started around 1216. The Priory possessed great wealth and power and held legal sway over the surrounding district. The vicinity of the Priory was a refuge for evil-doers for up to 37 days, the limits of sanctuary being marked by crosses at various points. Though the crosses have disappeared the names are still used today: Whitecross, Cairncross, Friarscross, Crosslaw and Applin Cross.

It is recorded that Mary Queen of Scots and her retinue of one thousand visited in 1566. In 1648, the Priory was besieged by Oliver Cromwell, and only two walls of the Choir were left standing. In the 17th & 18th centuries, many stones from the demolished walls were stolen/removed for private dwellings. A new Church was built incorporating these remaining walls. It had a major restoration in 1855.

5. Standing with your back to the Church doors you will see a path opposite; this is traditionally known as Edgar's Walls and crosses the site of the old monastic buildings in Chapterhouse and other domestic buildings. Visible to the left is the well and a fireplace-like structure which was probably an aumbry or cupboard. You will also see the remains of night stairs by which the monks would have descended to the Priory for their nightly devotions. Do take time to visit the community garden in front of the Priory which was completed in 2011.
6. Continue on the path (to your left) round the Priory, up through the Churchyard to a gate in the corner where a pathway leads between two walls. This route is known as the Chariot or Chirrit Way, which is said to have been the road by which the nuns went in covered carts or chariots to bathe in the sea. Continue down this path until you reach the junction with Fishers' Brae, turn right down to the corner past Scoutscroft Caravan Park and cross over the small bridge..
7. Turn immediately left over this bridge onto the unmade road and continue towards Burnhall with the Scavie Burn on your left. In 1645, the plague was at Northfield near St Abbs and while this epidemic lasted, any communication with the surrounding district was cut off. However, the residents of Coldingham supplied the needs of the stricken village by leaving provisions at Applin Cross near Burnhall Bridge, which were then collected by the folk from Northfield near St Abbs. A mound at Northfield Farm was long avoided by the ploughmen as having been a plague burial ground. Since then, the mound has been opened and skeletons and pieces of clothing unearthed.

8. With the Scavie Burn on your left, cross over the burn by the slatted bridge, (note picnic area on left which is maintained by a village group known as The Garden Party) follow the path with the burn now on your right until you reach Christison's Brae on your left. Go up here to the junction with the Bogan.
9. The Bogan is another historic area in the village. In the mid 19th Century, this street was called "Weavers Row". It is said that there were over 50 handloom weavers producing ginghams (striped shirtings), working over 13 hours a day for 6 shillings (30p) per week. However, in 1861 the American Civil War raised the price of cotton so much that handloom weaving ceased to be profitable and the weavers were forced to find other occupations. When the price of cotton fell again, powerloom factories were started. A few weavers, however, continued to work at their trade and supplied a small local demand. The last weaver in the Bogan was John Scott, who died in 1900. You will note that some of these houses are now two storey: these were 20th century alterations. There is also a Victorian water pump or standpipe which brought water from St Andrews Wells, much improving conditions, as previously water had been drawn from the burn.
10. Continue onto an unmade road up to the T junction. On the right you will notice a fine Georgian house, Bogangreen House. Turn left towards the Primary School, which was built in 1893 at the cost of £2150.
11. Opposite the Primary School Car Park there is an entrance into the Bogangreen Woodland Walk. The farm landowner has provided use of this for the community and work has been carried out by a group of enthusiasts to provide a pleasant woodland stroll. Following the path you will come to the roadside opposite Crosslaw Caravan Park.
12. Watching for oncoming cars in both directions, cross over the road and enter Crosslaw Caravan Park at the side of a large metal gate. Keep ahead on the roadway to reach the start of the park's Woodland Walkway. This initiative was awarded the David Bellamy Silver Conservation Award in 2001. Follow the path down the steps and at a fork keep right on the lower path to walk beside the Buskin Burn. Follow the path beside the burn, climbing the steps. Turn sharp left with the path to return to the main Caravan Park area. Follow the main exit route, turning right back onto the School Road.

13. Going down past the Primary School, pass Priors Walk entrance on the left, take the pathway just down on your right between the high wall and the bungalow. This takes you down to Paradise and with the burn on your right continue until you come to the main road (note the stone from St Andrew's Well set into the bridge parapet). In medieval language, 'a paradise' was a herb garden. It was on the side of the St Andrew's Burn that the Benedictine monks had established their gardens. St Andrew's Well is located further up this burn in the dean west of the village. It was the monks' water supply channeled through thick lead pipes.
14. Cross over the road (looking up to the left, outside the shop front you will see an example of the original pebble road surface). Bear right down towards the burn and follow it round, the newly renovated cottage on the left is where the old slaughterhouse, stables and holding pens were situated. Still keeping the burn on your right, look up between the cottages just before another fine Georgian house and you will see a taller house behind; this is where the "Alms House" was situated. Continue along burnside until you see the road/pathway on your left, go up here through the gates to the Priory and follow the path on your left back to the village Car Park through the Churchyard.

Opposite the Car park is the War Memorial garden. This was redesigned and planted in 1997 as part of the BBC Beechgrove Garden Hit Squad's 'Community Corner' competition. Under the guidance of the Hit Squad's Walter Gilmour and Jim McKirdy members of the Coldingham Heritage 900, the Community Council and village volunteers carried out all the work which was funded by the programme makers. The Sentinel conifers symbolise the servicemen and the thorny hedging represents the barbed wire of the First World War battles. The Maple tree in the corner is in honour of the Canadian exiles mentioned on the Memorial. The garden is maintained by The Coldingham Society 'Garden Party' and was Highly Commended in the Royal British Legion Scotland 'Best Kept War Memorial' competition and has won several awards..
